- QIA takes stake in Severn Trent – Qatar's sovereign wealth fund, Qatar Investment Authority (QIA), has taken a GBP200mn stake in UK's water company Severn Trent, the Financial Times reported. (Bloomberg)
- Al-Shaibei: QCB's prudent monetary policy helps Qatari banks stay healthy – Qatari banks have been able to maintain a very healthy balance sheet in the first quarter, due to the Qatar Central Bank's (QCB) prudent monetary policy and the overall growth momentum in the country, according to Qatar International Islamic Bank's (QIIB) CEO, Abdulbasit Ahmad Al-Shaibei. Besides achieving growth in their balance sheet, the Qatari banks have been able to do well in containing non-performing loans. Post-blockade, QCB injected funds into the local banking system. That was done to help local banks pay off their liabilities and tide over the crisis due to the unjustified blockade on Qatar that was imposed on June 5, 2017. "It was done very smoothly, without shaking the banking system. And the Qatari financial system has thus earned a lot of trust from international banks," Al-Shaibei emphasized. He said many Qatari banks have also succeeded in tapping other sources of funding including bonds and Sukuk from abroad. Post-blockade, Al-Shaibei said, the economy got further diversified in terms of either production (across various sectors) or finding alternative routes for exports and imports. The non-oil economy in particular has enhanced its contribution to the national economy. (Gulf-Times.com)
- CEO: QIIB stays focused on digitalization, utilizing fintech – Qatar International Islamic Bank (QIIB) remains focused on digitalization and utilizing financial technology (fintech), which is rapidly emerging, according to QIIB's CEO, Abdulbasit Ahmad Al-Shaibei. Al-Shaibei said, "This is the future of banking. We cannot afford to miss out. With fintech, we will see greater competition from outside. From outside, they (fintech) can compete with us using technology. We are looking at ways to partner with fintech companies. We are also looking closely at the block-chain technology. And as a bank, we are investing significantly on the IT infrastructure. Cyber security is a top priority for us as we adopt technology in a big way." Qatar Central Bank's Governor, HE Sheikh Abdulla bin Saoud Al-Thani had already stated that Qatar recognized fintech as a primary tool for achieving long-term development goals for the financial sector. This, the governor noted, would require the right regulatory environment, competitive operating costs, government support, funding and a robust financial services sector. (Gulf-Times.com)
- QFMA and QSE to hold seminar on stock split – Qatar Financial Markets Authority (QFMA) and Qatar Stock Exchange (QSE) will hold a seminar on Tuesday on splitting the stock of companies and legal entities listed at QSE. The seminar will explain how to implement the splitting process and its schedule, as well as its objectives and advantages for each of the listed companies and investors and the financial market in general. (Qatar Tribune)

By harnessing Mannai Trading Company's extensive experience in delivering digital business process automation projects, the partnership with UiPath will provide customers in Qatar with access to best-of-breed implementation and management services along with industry leading RPA and Intelligent Automation technology, the company stated. (Peninsula Qatar)
- China seeks enhanced ties with Qatar in several fields – China-Arab Economic Cooperation Committee (CAECC), a sovereign non-profit entity that is promoting the Belt and Road Initiative, is in discussions with Qatar's Supreme Council for Delivery and Legacy (SC) to promote Chinese visitors and business ties at the 2022 FIFA World Cup. Moreover, China is keen to enhance its relations with Qatar especially in the areas of technology such as fintech, Artificial Intelligence and block-chain as well as agriculture, infrastructure and tourism sectors in a big way, Snow Feinan Li, Chairperson of CAECC of China Association for Promoting International Economic and Technical Cooperation. Highlighting that CAECC could collaborate (with SC) in securing visitors from China; she said it could also cooperate in joint promotional activities and recommend opportunities for Chinese sponsors for the 2022 World Cup. The visit of HH the Emir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al-Thani to China in April this year opened up wider horizons for cooperation and strengthening of strategic partnership, where bilateral relations were strengthened. International

- UK ever more polarized as Brexit Party storms to EU vote win – Nigel Farage’s Brexit Party stormed to victory in a European election, riding a wave of anger at the failure of Prime Minister Theresa May to take the UK out of the European Union. A European Parliament election that the UK only took part in because May delayed Brexit showed a country even more polarized over the EU divorce nearly three years since a 2016 referendum in which it voted 52% to 48% to leave. The UK was supposed to have left on March 29 but it remains a member of the EU and its politicians are still arguing over how, when or even whether the country will leave the club it joined in 1973. May announced she was stepping down, saying it was a matter of deep regret that she could not deliver Brexit. The Conservative Party was on course for one of its worst results in a nationwide election ever. (Reuters)
- ECB's Weidmann sees no need for policy action – European Central Bank’s (ECB) Policymaker and Presidential hopeful Jens Weidmann said he saw no need for the ECB to change its policy at present, despite a weaker Eurozone’s economy. ECB’s Governing Council is due to meet on June 5-6 and decide on the terms of its third round of cheap loans to banks - one of several measures it has deployed to stimulate lending in the bloc. “This isn’t a situation where prices are falling and we have to react now,” the Head of Germany’s central bank told members of the public at the Bundesbank’s open days. (Reuters)
- Japan to add IT, telecom sectors to foreign ownership restriction – Japan’s government stated it will add from August the information-technology and telecommunication sectors to a list of industries for which restrictions on foreign ownership of Japanese firms apply. The new rule comes amid heightening US pressure in dealing with cyber-security risks and technological transfers involving China. (Reuters)
- China's industrial profits shrink in April, add to pressure on economy – Profits for China’s industrial firms dropped in April on slowing demand and manufacturing activity, suggesting the previous month’s rebound may have been a one-off and adding pressure for policymakers to step up support for a cooling economy. Industrial profits declined 3.7% YoY to 515.4bn Yuan in April, according to the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS). That compared with a 13.9% surge in March, which was the biggest gain in eight months. For the first four months, industrial firms notched up profits of 1.81tn Yuan, down 3.4% from a year earlier, compared with a 3.3% drop in the first quarter this year. The profit decline in April was due to the timing of the government’s planned cuts in value-added tax that kicked in at the start of April, bringing forward pent-up demand for some industrial goods and boosting profits in March. Regional

- Middle East HNI wealth to grow 6% annually over the next five years – The wealth of high-net worth individuals (HNIs) in the Middle East and Africa (MEA) region is likely to grow at 6% annually over the next five years, according to a report. The wealth of HNIs grew to $70tn globally in 2018, albeit at a decelerated rate of 4% on the back of challenging equity markets, the new Oliver Wyman and Deutsche Bank Report stated. The strongest growth rates were observed in Emerging

Markets at 7%-8%, while Developed Markets trailed behind at 2%-3%. "We anticipate this growth divergence to continue over the coming years. Wealth managers looking to achieve above average growth rates must take a look at their Emerging Markets footprint and strategy to best position themselves to capture this growth," the report stated. - Saudi Arabian Mining Company to weigh rights issue of as much as $5bn – Saudi Arabian Mining Company is weighing a plan to raise as much as $5bn through a rights offering to finance potential acquisitions, according to sources. Maaden is working with HSBC Holding’s Saudi Arabia unit on the possible offering that could happen later this year, sources said. The size of the rights issue has not been finalized and could end up being smaller than $5bn, they said. The Public Investment Fund (PIF), which owns a 65% stake in the mining firm, will also participate in the rights issue through a debt-for-equity swap and exchange its loans to Maaden subsidiaries into equity, sources added. Maaden, a so-called national champion in the Kingdom’s economic diversification plan, has been looking for possible takeover targets, CEO, Darren Davis said. The company is working with financial advisers including Michael Klein and JPMorgan Chase & Company as it scouts for potential acquisitions, sources said in July. (Bloomberg)
- Saudi Oger considering filing for bankruptcy – Saudi Oger is considering options, including filing for bankruptcy, Al Arabiya reported, citing unidentified sources. The construction company faces up to 45,000 claims amounting to $8bn, Al Arabiya reported. (Bloomberg)
- Dubai's Emaar Properties hires advisors for sale of district cooling unit – Dubai’s Emaar Properties has hired advisors including Standard Chartered for the sale of its district cooling business, sources said, as part of a broader plan to offload non-core activities. Emaar Properties’ Chairman, Mohammed Alabbar has said in an interview with CNBC Arabia in July last year that the group, which is 32% owned by the Emirate’s government, is seeking to sell assets beyond its main businesses. The developer of the world’s tallest skyscraper, the Burj Khalifa, last year hired London-headquartered Standard Chartered to advise on the disposal of five hospitality assets, which were sold to Abu Dhabi National Hotels. Established in 2004, Emaar District Cooling provides services to key projects in the UAE, though it gave no further detail on the size of the business. Emaar’s core businesses focus on property development, retail and hospitality. (Reuters)
- Finabl to spend $200mn of IPO money on expansion – Payments and foreign exchange company Finabl plans to use $200mn from its share sale in London earlier this month to expand both organically and via acquisitions, its CEO, Promoth Manghat said. The UAE-based company, whose brands include UAE Exchange, Travelex Holdings and Xpress Money, raised $400mn in an Initial Public Offering (IPO) on the London Stock Exchange. Half of that amount was raised selling new shares. “This money will strengthen our balance sheet and give us more fire power to execute our expansion strategy,” he said. Expansion plans also include acquisitions focused on intellectual property and technology and across payments and foreign exchange, he said. The investment, over the next two to three years will be made in its existing businesses across the Middle East, Asia and Africa as well as in the payments business in Europe and the US, he added. (Reuters)

- Kuwait's KIPCO has no imminent issuance plans after upgrading bond program – Kuwait Projects Company (KIPCO), the Gulf state's largest listed investment company, has no imminent plans to issue US Dollar-denominated bonds, however, will keep monitoring the market closely, a company executive said. KIPCO last week updated its bond program, under which it may issue bonds worth up to $3bn. HSBC has been hired as arranger and dealer for the program, with other dealers including Emirates NBD Capital, First Abu Dhabi Bank (FAB), JPMorgan, KAMCO Investment Company and MUFG. "We are not looking at an imminent bond issue," Director, group financial control at KIPCO, Anuj Rohtagi said. "We will keep monitoring the market closely," he added. KIPCO, rated 'BBB-' by S&P and 'Baa3' by Moody's, have total assets of $34.2bn as of the end of last year. Its portfolio includes commercial banking, asset management, investment banking and real estate operations. It has three international bonds outstanding, each amounting to $500mn and maturing in 2020, 2023 and 2027. (Reuters)
