Fund Manager Comment

Portfolio performance: The Fund outperformed the market in July.

Asia-Pacific ex Japan Market review: Asian markets fell in July due to losses in China (-13.8%). Worries about the regulatory environment at large cap stocks like Alibaba (-14%) and Tencent (-18%) brought Chinese internet stocks down significantly. These companies as a whole have now retraced 50% from the highs of last September when Alibaba tried to IPO Ant Financial. Both these companies are now cheap and very attractive over the longer term but are still in downtrends for now. Once the downtrends stop, these companies will have enormous upside over the next 2-3 years.

India was the best performing market in July (+1%). The economic rebound driven by COVID stimulus has led to a strong rebound in the last 3 months and despite Dollar strength, the Indian Rupee has been relatively stable. India's current account has improved significantly in the past few years to the point where it now has a 1% surplus. If this is sustainable, this is positive longer term for the Indian currency and economy.

Outlook: Asia has been in a correction since January. Whilst most of the correction is behind us, especially in China, there are still some markets which are trading at very high valuations with negative outlooks. Chinese internet stocks are now cheap and attractive over the longer term but other markets are yet to correct so absolute performance will continue to be subdued. The extreme bullishness from early 2021 has now largely reversed and we are starting to see signs of pessimism which is positive from a future performance perspective. Once some of the other medium sized markets ex-China correct, then Asia can start to outperform again.
